The name website will be ttrpghoard

I will be creating a website on the topic of a TTRPG called Pathfinder 2e. The website name will allow it to not only have information relating to that game, but others as well as time goes on. The website will describe my thoughts and views on parts of the systems as long as they are allowed to be discussed publicly (in case of people using the site to obtain information usually paid for). The website will go over numbers and basic statistics about health values of creatures, damage values of attacks, weapons, spells, ect.

The page names will be:

- Ttrpghoard
- Creatures
- Forum (This will be for those that have made accounts)
- Players
    - Character Creation
    - Classes
    - Spell List (Will have personal thoughts on each)
        - Arcane
        - Occult
        - Divine

I will be storing information for the user login information such as their username and password. The login will be saved with (Username, Password,). The website will also check if the user has administrative power in the website and store that information for login.
